USING GPS IN CORNWALL

When driving in Cornwall it is important not to solely rely on your Satnav. Whilst Satnav can often take you to exactly where you want to be coverage can be patchy and it can be problematic if you take a wrong turning. Rural Cornwall has a network of narrow un-named lanes. Satnavs will often recalculate your route and will treat the un-named lanes as any other road and you can soon find yourself in a maze of these with high hedges and passing places. We would always recommend that you print out some directions and have a road atlas to hand. Then if you get lost you can follow signs to the nearest village and
